tauara Falls Case Taken Up with

The problem of conservation of water power at Niagara Fails was put squarely up to President Wilson yesterday by J. Horsce MacFarland and Richard R. Watrous, president and secretary of the American Civic Association.

MacFarland and Watrous informed the Fails, and described to him the deplorable condition which would ensue unless some change were inaugurated in the matter of handling the water new pouring over Niagara. They heaged that the Chief Executive should do everything in his power to maintain the existing minimum of divertible water, saying that it would be a "crying shame," and the most will be a "crying shame, and the most will be a "crying shame," and the most will be a "crying shame, and the most will be a "crying shame," and the most will be a "crying shame," and the most will be a "crying shame, and the most will be a "crying shame, and the most will be a "crying shame, and the most will be a "crying shame," and the most will be a "crying shame, and the most will be a "cryin
